Matt Mayers Photography: Seeing the World in a High Dynamic Range

What is High Dynamic Range Photography? The overwhelming beauty of breathtaking sunsets on the lake, gorges, fall foliage, and bridges captured to appear as paintings is an example of this delicate method.

Matt, a Brooklyn and Long Island native, is a two-time Cornell grad that currently works in the non-profit sector.

He has presented his work at the October 2017's First Friday Gallery at Sunny Days of Ithaca. Matt has puzzles and 4x6 photo cards being sold there. He also has an assortment of matts, photo cards, and canvases being sold at Americana Winery.

10. The History Center (Special Event)

Schoolhouse Address | thehistorycenter.net/

Join us for First Friday Gallery Night at the Eight Square Schoolhouse because we will have our program here instead of at The History Center.

So come out to Hanshaw Road in the Town of Dryden (just off from Route 13, or around the bend from the SPCA, across from Cayuga Radio Group) between 5:00 and 7:00 p.m.

Learn about the schoolhouse, play, and do some artwork on chalk boards. Prizes will be given out for the most creative artwork. Consider it a one evening summer school with ice cream. We promise that it will be fun. The schoolhouse combines architecture, history and education in one setting!

11. First Unitarian Society of Ithaca

Caring for the Earth and her Resources by Carol Mae Whitlow

The artist explores, through photomontage technique, issues of environmental and social justice awareness, from "Remembering Rachel" Carson who wrote Silent Spring and helped us see what DDT was doing to bird populations, to "Inspiration Iquitos" honoring a Butterfly Farm and Wildlife Rescue Center owner in the Amazon, to "Give who? Your tired your poor" and "Ghandi's Dream of Peace" remembering how his spinning helped work towards independence from Britain. "Pelican Spirit Rising" was in the State of the Art Juried Photo Show this spring and its companion piece "Broken" is on display here. Below is "Elephant Morning Work" from Chitwan, Nepal.

12. The Mink Gallery

Jammin' for Justice

This group of work has been brought together as a collection of art from vital Ithaca community artists in support of two local organizations doing critical anti-racism work -- Southside Community Center and the Multicultural Resource Center. Both of these integral organizations work on issues that address cultural and systemic oppression in our local and national landscapes through the power of organized arts and culture as a part of healing the multigenerational/centuries-old wounds that exist in all of us and our communities.

Each artist has their own story to bring through their medium and unique perspective of art as resistance to oppression.

Featured Artists: Khalil Bey, Nydia Blas, C. Knightley, Cesar Enciso, Carol Oddy

Reflexion - an exhibit featuring Printmakers of Atelier de gravure de la Villedieu

We are very excited to announce our upcoming exhibit featuring the printmakers of l'Atelier de Gravure de la Villedieu, a community studio located outside of Paris. Since 1986, l'Association d'Arts Graphique de la Villedieu/Atelier de Gravure de la Villedieu has organized the "Biennales Internationales de Gravure", exhibiting the work by great contemporary French and International printmakers. The recent director of the l'Atelier de Gravure de la Villedieu, Fabienne Veverka, has joined The Ink Shop while she is residing in the US, and will be present for the opening reception of this show. She will present an artist's talk for our TalkPrint series at The Ink Shop Saturday July 28th.
